Date: May 19, 2016

Place: Science, Industry, Business Library (SIBL), 188 Madison Ave, between 34th and 35th Streets.

Meeting room is on lower level. Signs will be posted. In order to enter the building before 10AM, tell security guard that you are with CDSN.

Time: 9:45AM to 12 PM (Networking and coffee at 9:45AM)

Topic: An Overview of the New Career Vectors System

The CVS is a new, structured, data-gathering process designed to provide professionally oriented clients with in-depth career related information about themselves and an increased awareness of possible occupations to explore. The CVS is self-administered, self-scored and comes in two print versions--- a briefer Basic Version and an expanded, more detailed, Comprehensive Version. An online version is currently being developed.

The CVS was developed to fill a gap in the field. Most assessment instruments are geared to a general audience of high school, college, and general adult populations. It was felt there was a need for an instrument that specifically addresses the assessment needs of professionally oriented individuals. The CVS is Holland based and was designed to provide greater insight and awareness of major factors related to one's career-success and satisfaction for professionals in transition and advanced students in need of career direction and development.

Speakers:

Barry Lustig, MA is the former Director of the Career Assessment Institute at F.E.G.S. and a career assessment and development specialist with over 45 years of professional experience. Barry developed an original career assessment model which he has taught at the New School Graduate Program in Career Counseling and for twenty years as part of the F.E.G.S. professional development institute.

Barry has a special interest in career assessment and in clinical and psychological issues in career counseling. He believes that personality is a major component of career competency. In addition to developing the Career Vectors System, Barry developed a monograph "Personality

Dynamics and Internal Barriers in Clinical Career Counseling and Executive Coaching,” and “The Strengths and Development Needs Card Sort.”

Barry has a BA degree in Psychology from Queens College (CUNY), an MA degree in Vocational Guidance from New York University, and a Professional Diploma from Teachers College, Columbia University in Student Personnel Administration in Higher Education (with a concentration in coursework in Counseling Psychology.)

Hope Lovell Newman, L.M.S.W. formed Career Vectors, L.L.C. in June of 2013 out of a desire to help people by providing them with tools for both comprehensive self assessment and the translation of that into the identification of practical, current, occupational possibilities to explore that are related to the current job market.

Hope has a passion to help people find rewarding work. She specializes in helping clients who are confused or in career distress to uncover their unique self/career identity profile (vocational identity) and develop a career in line with their values, interests, skills, abilities, and personality.

Hope graduated with honors from Brown University, and has an MA degree from Columbia University, and an MSW degree from Hunter College School of Social Work. She completed graduate work in Career Counseling and Career Assessment at Fordham University Graduate School of Education. She works part-time for CDSN member, Carol Anderson at Milano, The New School for International Affairs, Management, and Urban Policy, counseling graduate students and leading workshops.
